Dear Neighbors,

Dads Matter! I heard that term recently and it caused me to consider the reason for this expression. As a community, we talk much about the importance of mothers in children's lives, and somewhat less about the importance of fathers. Studies show that children with involved fathers, or father figures, are less likely to get in trouble with the law, tend to do better in school and are more likely to be employed. We all know the value in having two parents, with different perspectives and approaches, intimately involved in children's lives to strike a balance in their growth and development.

Last month, I shared special thoughts about my mom, Kathy, with you. But, truly, it was the balance of my mother and my father in my life that made me the person I am today. While mom is a farm girl, loving nature and the natural world, it was my dad, Gene, that got us (sometimes dragged us) out into that nature. From rock collecting and camping, to road trips across the country, Dad would load us up in the station wagon and off we would go. As a former Army Air Corp pilot, it was my father who would map out and plan our adventures, drawing from his training and service. Dad was the pilot on our trips. Mom was the crew chief. No one went anywhere until she said "go".

One of my earliest lessons in economics came from Dad's family project to purchase a used camping trailer. Placing a crock on the kitchen counter, he encouraged us all - my four siblings and I - to contribute to the camper fund. Once the camper was purchased, he spent time fixing it up and getting it ready. That summer, we traveled the hills and hollers of West Virginia, visiting Smoke Hole and Seneca Rocks. The following year, we went on the big adventure! During his time flying training missions over the desert, my father had developed a love for the Southwest territory and wanted to share it with his family. Traveling to the Navajo Indian Reservation, the Grand Canyon and several other national parks, we then turned north to Yellowstone, then east for the return trip through Mount Rushmore, spending three weeks roaming over 6,000 miles sharing family, the out-of-doors and a love of the this great country.

Saving Our Environment

Taking Eww Out of Our Water; Five Things to Know About Wastewater Management

Nature doesn't create new water, it is just recycled - we are using the same water that has been here for millions of years. The same water that has been used for drinking, cleaning, cooking, bathing, etc. The water that we use and discard is called wastewater. Our lives would not be sustainable if our untreated wastewater - a potent stew of sewage, used cooking oil, chemical detergents, bacteria, pathogens and excess nutrients - was released directly into the environment. The good news is that modern technology for the treatment of wastewater ensures that we rarely think about the water going down the drain. Even better news is that the County's program ranks as one of the most reliable in the country. NewsCenter provides an unfiltered look at the county's Wastewater Management Program and five things you should know.

Tidal Shoreline Property

Tidal shorelines are beautiful, yet extremely sensitive, natural resources. Recognizing the critical importance to protect, preserve and restore these beneficial environmental assets, the County government and other state and federal agencies have adopted laws and regulations to preserve the quality of our waterways by preventing erosion, protecting shorelines, reducing pollution, and preserving vegetation. Proper Disposal of Smoking Materials

The Fairfax County Fire and Rescue Department would like to remind all residents who smoke to keep in mind the below safety tips as it relates to the proper disposal of smoking materials:

- Never dispose of cigarette butts in potted planting soil. The soil, when it gets too dry, can become highly flammable.

- Keep smoking materials away from anything that can burn (i.e., mattresses, bedding, upholstered furniture, draperies, etc.).
- Never smoke in a home where oxygen is being used.
- If you smoke, choose fire-safe cigarettes. They are less likely to cause fires.
